

The Employee Assistance Program Association of Toronto (EAPAT) Proudly Presents

Keeping Pace with Change in a Wireless World

His last session received fantastic reviews for content, relevance, and energy. Back by popular demand is our special guest Steve Prentice who will provide more useful insights on the hot topic of technology in the workplace.

The wireless world seems to have ushered in a pace of change unmatched in human history. Viral ads change the destinies of products and people overnight. Remote technologies such as BlackBerrys and virtual offices have changed working hours to 24/7. And the demand for instant response rules everything.

So is the workplace coping? Are things changing for better or worse?

Join productivity expert Steve Prentice as he explores the impact of high-speed technology on the working environment, and assesses the pace of change in terms of productivity, employee attraction/retention, and overall progress. Based on research done by his company, Bristall Morgan Inc., this presentation will equip you with heightened knowledge of the external demands placed on the HR world by technology and cultural change, and will assist you in preparing your employee health and productivity strategies for the next few business cycles.

Steve Prentice is a specialist in organizational psychology, with his focus being the effective pairing of people and technology in the workplace. He is CEO of Bristall Morgan Inc., a consulting and training firm with offices in Toronto and New York. He is also an author and producer of business television programs. Steve holds degrees in Communications and Psychology. He makes frequent appearances on television, radio and in print in both Canada and the US, as an expert in workplace productivity and technology.
